SUFFRAGE BELL WILL COME HERE

Gettysburg and Other Towns of the County to Have Visit from New Liberty Bell in Charge of Prominent Suffragists.

The Woman's Liberty Bell, which suffragists hope will proclaim the enfranchisement of the women of Pennsylvania when the vote on the suffrage amendment has been counted on November 2, will start on a tour of the State, mounted upon a motor-truck, on Wednesday, June 23. It will start from Sayre, Bradford County, after appropriate ceremonies, and will zig-zag back and forth across the State, passing through every county and visiting practically every town before it finally arrives in Independence Square, Philadelphia, on election night. Gettysburg and Adams County towns are on the route during the mid-summer.

The route will be from county seat to county seat, taking in as many of the smaller towns as possible. The local suffrage organizations all along the line will welcome the bell with mass meetings and demonstrations. It will be met at each county line by an escort of automobiles. They will form a guard of honor for the bell while it is in their county and will then turn it over to the suffragists from the next county at the county line.

Every citizen of Pennsylvania will have a chance to see the bell on its tour but it will not be heard until the bell has been granted to the women of the State. Massive bronze chains will bind its clapper so that it cannot sound a single stroke until then.

The mute appeal of the chained and silent bell will be supplemented at every stop on the tour by the speeches of the able corps of suffragists who will accompany it. Their theme will be the motto on the bell, "Establish Justice." Their mission will be to make the voters of Pennsylvania realize that to establish justice for their women they must franchise them and permit them to proclaim with their bell in 1915 the message which the original Liberty Bell proclaimed for men in 1776.

The women had their bell made as an exact duplicate of the original bell. It is made of 2,000 pounds of the finest bronze and is exactly the same size and shape as the old bell. It bears the same inscription, "Proclaim Liberty Throughout The Land To All The Inhabitants Thereof." The absence of the crack and the addition of its own motto "Establish Justice", are the only two things by which it can be distinguished from the national relic.

SPEND HONEYMOON HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Wetzel are Entertaining their Niece.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Amato, of Norwalk, Ohio, are spending part of their wedding trip at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wetzel, on Carlisle street, after having made quite an extended trip to Niagara Falls, New York City, Baltimore, and other points. They motored on Sunday to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kugler, near Emmitsburg, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Wetzel.

TYPHOID EPIDEMIC

Chambersburg Alarmed over Spread of Disease in that Town.

Twenty one cases of typhoid fever have been reported in Chambersburg, the majority of cases being found in the Third and Fourth wards. Friday evening two more cases were reported and at noon Saturday two others were added, making the total up to that time of twenty-one. It is said that about ten other cases are suspected and may develop to be typhoid within a short time.

SIX MONTHS FOR STEALING DRUG

New Oxford Woman Took Morphine and Jewelry from Office of York Physician. Admits Theft and Gets Heavy Sentence.

Lizzie Peters, of New Oxford, was sent to jail for six months and fined $25 in the York county court on Monday, on a plea of guilty to entering the office of Dr. C. H. Venus, on May 5, last, stealing a lot of morphine tablets, a gold necklace and other jewelry. The value of the articles stolen was $21. The defendant admitted that she was a user of morphine. The theft occurred while the occupants of the Venus house were absent.

She was accused of stealing 800 tablets of the drug. For some time previous to the theft she had been keeping house for Harry Lookenbill, an employee at the shoe factory in New Oxford. When she could no longer buy the drug to which she was addicted she visited York and called at the office of Dr. Venus, where she asked for Mrs. Venus.

Learning that she was away from home the Peters woman is believed to have waited until the physician's departure on a professional call and then to have gained entrance through a back window. The loss was discovered by Dr. Venus, upon his return, and the authorities were notified. They worked on the case for several days before they achieved any success. She was finally arrested by Constable Lefever who went to New Oxford with Dr. Venus.

Lookenbill was arrested at the same time but later established a definite alibi and was released.

BADLY HURT

McSherrytown Man Crushed between Two Motor Trucks.

Crushed between two motor cars James M. Bassler, trackman of the Pennsylvania railroad, who lives in McSherrytown, was injured Monday at 6:30 a. m., the accident occurring between Spring Grove and Menges Mills. The injured man was operating a motor truck and had another car trailing. The trailer he had secured with a pick which was stuck into a tie. In some manner he lost his balance and fell. The two cars coming together, he was crushed between them, being caught at the hips, both of which were injured. He was also injured on the chest. Fellow workmen came to his rescue and he was taken to Hanover where Dr. T. H. Bittinger, the company's physician attended him. It has not been ascertained whether he is injured internally.

COMPLIMENTS LEAGUE

Better Than Tri-State Says. Umpire. Other Leagues not so Good.

Speaking of the attendance in the Blue Ridge League, Umpire Glatts declared that it was much better than he had ever seen in all his experience in Tri-State towns. He said that last year he umpired a double header in Altoona, when that team was playing good ball, to a crowd of 42.

One of the players, Clay of Chambersburg, was not to be outdone and told a little story which he declared was an actual fact. He said that this season he was playing with Worcester, in the New England league. The last three games he played were against Manchester, in Manchester, and they played to crowds of 11, 8 and 28.

COMING WEDDING

Miss Sanders and Mr. Pecher will be Married June 22.

Invitations have been issued to the marriage of Miss Helen Grace Sanders and J. Harry Pecher, which will take place on Tuesday morning, June 22, at 8:30 o'clock, in St. Mary's Catholic church, Fairfield.

ASK MONEY FOR FARM EXPERT

Adams County Commissioners are Requested to Donate Five Hundred Dollars for Establishment of Bureau here. The Plan.

Representing the orchard and farm interests of the county, Chester J. Tyson, P. C. Sowers, Daniel M. Hoffman, and J. L. Butt, Esq., appeared before the commissioners at their weekly meeting this morning to urge an annual appropriation of $500 toward the establishment of a farm bureau in this county. The first three gentlemen were representing the Adams County Fruit Growers Association while Mr. Butt, was present as a farmer and orchardist and to speak in behalf of others in those occupations.

Under a recent Act the Federal Government provides farm experts for various counties to give advice and instruction to farmers, where it is desired and requested. They pay the salary but the county is required to pay the other expenses of the local farm bureau, and each county is empowered to appropriate for the work a sum not exceeding $1500. The experts are sent from State College.

All that was asked by the committee, which appeared before the commissioners this morning, was one third of this amount, the other expenses likely being borne by the various local organizations composed of farmers and fruit growers. The Fruit Growers Association of Adams County, the strongest organization of its kind in this section, regards the plan most favorably and is heartily in earnest in endeavoring to have it put into action.

The commissioners took the proposition under consideration and will, it is expected, at some meeting in the near future report action either favorable or unfavorable to the plan. Edmund H. Singmaster has returned to Philadelphia after a visit of several weeks with relatives here.

COMING CONTEST

Young People will Try for Silver Medals.

A silver medal contest will be given in the Presbyterian church Friday evening, June 18 at 7:30. The contestants are young ladies representing the following Sunday Schools, Reformed, United Brethren, Presbyterian, St. James, McGurdy's, Pitzer's and Fairplay.

The St. James orchestra will be present and will render several selections. Misses Gladys Burgoon and Helen Oyler will give a vocal duet and Miss Vera Kadel will sing a solo. The judges will likely be selected from some of the other Sunday Schools of the town.

The public is invited to attend this contest which will be one of unusual interest to the community. A silver offering will be taken.

TUESDAY MARKET

Fruit in Abundance Offered for Sale by County Truckers.

One of the largest markets of the year was registered this morning, thirty seven stalls being occupied, and strawberries and cherries were offered in abundance. So large was the supply that some of the truckers did not dispose of their stock until closing time. The prices remained about the same, both selling at three boxes for a quarter. The usual assortment of vegetables found ready sale.

PICNIC

Temperance Organization will Take Suppers to Kurtz Playground.

The Young Peoples' Branch and their friends will have a box picnic at Kurtz Playground this evening at 6:30. The young ladies who will participate in the silver medal contest next Friday evening will be guests of the Y. P. B. at this time.

THE summer early closing begins on Monday, June 14th. Until further notice our store will close during the summer months at five o'clock daily except Saturdays. G. W. Weaver & Son.—advertisement. 1

BUILDING BOOM FOR THE SUMMER

One Large Structure and Several Fine Residences to be Erected in Gettysburg during the Coming Months. Work for Contractors.

Gettysburg masons, carpenters, plasterers, and all others engaged in building operations will have a busy six months of it according to present predictions based on the number of new structures which are to be erected here during the summer and fall.

Work is to be started in the very near future on the new $50,000 building for the Gettysburg College Preparatory School. It will be colonial in architecture and one of the finest buildings on the college grounds. The structure will be located at the extreme northeast corner of the Prep campus. The contract for it has not yet been awarded. This building will require the better part of a year to construct but it must be ready for occupancy in September 1916.

Two new residences were started here during the past ten days, that of J. I. Burgoon on the south side of Springs avenue, and that of Charles H. Smith on Broadway. The excavating has been done for both of these and the foundations will be up in a short time. Both will be modern in architecture and appointments, and will add much to the appearance of the portions of town in which they are located.

The new residence of Dr. G. D. Stahley will be started within a week or two. It will be colonial in design and will be built on the college campus, the exact location not yet being definitely determined. It will be of brick construction and should be completed before Christmas.

D. F. Plank's double brick house on South street, and Harry Stock's new brick house on East Middle street, are both under roof and ready for the plasterers.

The old building on Baltimore street owned by Dr. H. L. Diehl has been razed and in its place there will be erected a fine new modern office and residence structure. It is to be three stories in height with an office and store room on the first floor and apartments on the second and third.

John M. Warner is adding a third story to his building at the corner of Baltimore and East Middle streets which will provide more apartments. The custom of living in "flats" is apparently becoming more popular here every year and those who have attractive rooms to offer seem to experience no difficulty in getting desirable tenants.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Odd Fellows will Remember Members who Died during Past Year.

Gettys Lodge 124, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will hold memorial services in their rooms to-night for the members of the lodge who have died during the past twelve months.

These include Jesse M. Walter, A. P. Baugher, William E. Stallsmith, Rev. Carl F. Miller, William E. Bidle and Levi Stallsmith. Dr. T. C. Billheimer will deliver the memorial address, and services appropriate to a lodge of sorrow will be held.

The exercises will be open to all Odd Fellows and their friends and the program will be opened at eight o'clock.

YOUTHFUL DRUMMERS

Thirty Two Years the Aggregate Age of Four Musicians.

York Springs claims the distinction of having the youngest drum corps in the state. Four sons of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. McKinney, William, aged 10, Samuel, 9, Barton, 7, and Dick, 6, play the fife and drums in martial and other airs. The parents both are splendid cornetists.

INFANT DEAD

Funeral Services Held in Abbottstown Cemetery.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Myers, of Bittinger's Station, died Sunday evening, aged one month and twenty days.

Funeral Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the house. Interment at Abbottstown.

KING-SANDERS CHURCH WEDDING

James King, of Gettysburg, and Miss Louella Sanders, of Fairfield, are Married at Nuptial High Mass in Fairfield.

A pretty wedding took place in St. Mary's Catholic church, Fairfield this morning when Miss Louella Teresa Sanders and James Alban King were married. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sanders, of Fairfield, and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. King, Gettysburg.

The bridal party entered the church as Miss Marie King played the wedding march from "Lohengrin". The bride wore a gown of white net over satin, with a veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. Her maid of honor was Miss Joanna King, who wore a gown of green silk mull and carried pink roses. The best man was Lennis Sanders, of Fairfield.

Rev. Fr. H. B. Strickland celebrated a Nuptial High Mass and during the ceremony Miss Marie King sang "Ave Maria." The Mendelssohn March was used as the recessional.

This evening a reception to the immediate families and relatives will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Sanders in Fairfield. Mr. and Mrs. King will reside in Hanover where Mr. King is in the employ of the Hanover Gas Company. The bride received a beautiful assortment of wedding gifts.

Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. William L. King and daughters, Allen B. Plank, Miss Bessie Breighner, and Miss Rhoda Breighner, all of Gettysburg.

MRS. JOHN S. WEAVER

Funeral Wednesday Morning with Mass at St. Mary's Church.

Mrs. Ella M. Weaver, wife of John S. Weaver, died at her home in Brush-town on Sunday evening aged 55 years. She was stricken shortly after retiring and died within a half hour.

She leaves her husband and these children, Mrs. Paul Staub, McSherrytown; Joseph R. Weaver, John W. Weaver, Leo B. Weaver, and Miss Emma B. Weaver, all at home. She also leaves one sister and five brothers, Mrs. Catharine Rider, McSherrytown; Henry Kuhn, Square Corner; William Kuhn, Frederick; Augustus Kuhn and Samuel Kuhn, Mt. Pleasant township; Edward Kuhn, Mount Rock.

Funeral at nine o'clock Wednesday morning, with services and interment at St. Mary's church.

SAMUEL H. INGLE

Funeral Thursday with Interment being Made at Uriah.

Samuel Henry Ingle, a former resident of Straban township, died at the home of his son, Frederick Ingle, in Wellsville, at 4:30 p. m. Sunday aged 65 years, 1 month and 9 days.

He leaves his wife and the following children, Frank Ingle, of Roswell, New Mexico; Mrs. Josephine Pifer, of New Oxford; and Frederick Ingle, of Wellsville, York county. He also leaves seven grandchildren. He is survived by one brother, James Ingle, of New Castle, Delaware.

Funeral services will be Thursday, meeting at the house at 9 o'clock. Interment at Grace Evangelical church at Uriah.

KENNETH S. BREAM

Body of Little Child to be Buried at Biglerville Wednesday.

Kenneth Stanley, the only child of Mervin and Elizabeth Bream, of Harrisburg, died on Monday evening at four o'clock. The cause of his death was pneumonia and whooping cough. He was aged 9 months, and 24 days.

The funeral will be held in St. Paul's Lutheran church, Biglerville, upon the arrival of the 1:30 train on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Thomas Reich will conduct the services and will be assisted by Rev. C. F. Floto. Relatives and friends will accept this as a notice of the funeral.

BEGINNING this evening the millinery stores will close at five o'clock until the busy season. Saturday nights excepted.—advertisement. 1

ITALIANS DRAW NEAR TRIESTE

Governor Transfers Residence
as Troops Advance.

MEET FEEBLE RESISTANCE

Invaders Hammer at Gorz Defenses and Have Almost Isolated Austrian Stronghold.

Lugano, Switzerland, June 15.—The Italian eastern army, which has forced its way across the lower Isonzo, capturing Montebelluna, is pushing forward along the Gulf of Trieste, toward the city of Trieste. Further progress was made.

The next immediate objective is the town of Nabresina, on the gulf,
nine miles from Trieste.

Officials Leave Trieste.

Rome, June 15.—The governor of Trieste has transferred his residence to Adelsburg. The chamber of commerce has been transferred to Vienna and the Trieste treasury has been sent to Ljubljana.

An Italian official statement concerning the progress of the campaign against Austria says:

"From Tolme to Carnia all the enemy's attempts against the positions we captured have been successfully repulsed. In the Nola sector in Car-nia we occupied Valentia.

"Friday night our heavy artillery cut the railway from Goritz to Monfalcone, in the vicinity of the Sagrado railway station."

Advices from various sources declare that in Trieste and the neighboring towns of Miranau and Opicina, both military bases of importance,
preparations are being made for evacuation and that the military stores piled up there during the last few days are being transferred partly to ward the north of Ljubljana and partly toward the southeast.

Italy to Care For Poor Families.

Verona, June 15.—The Italian government, considering the poverty and miserable condition of the inhabitants in the districts just conquered, has decided to give the families of Italians serving in the Austrian army from those districts the same allowances as the families of Italian soldiers. It is stated. This will be announced in the new districts.

WARDEN PREVENTS SUICIDE

Murderer Leaps Four Floors Into Arms of Prison Keeper.

New York, June 15.—Hyman Liebman, a prisoner in the Tombs, who was to have been placed on trial for murder, jumped from the fourth tier of the prison cells forty feet into the arms of Warden Hanley.

Hanley had heard the keepers shout
and he looked up and braced himself to catch Liebman, who jumped. Liebman was only shaken up. Hanley was considerably bruised.

Liebman's attempt at suicide was witnessed by keepers, who saw him climb from the first tier to the fourth,
but were unable to head him off.

Liebman was indicted on a charge of murdering his seven-year-old child, Sadie, by throwing her out of a window at his home last March. Another child, Samuel, five years old, was also thrown from the window and sustained injuries he will bear through life.

WAR PARTY CARRIES GREECE

But Anti-Intervention Cabinet May Hold on Until August.

Paris, June 15.—A dispatch from Athens to the Havas News agency says that the candidates of the party of M. Venizelos, the former premier, who gave up office on account of his policy in favor of war on the side of the allies, were elected in Athens and that elsewhere through the kingdom
his partisans were successful.

King Constantine has not yet learned the result of the election, as his physical condition still continues to cause anxiety.

A change of ministry will be impossible until parliament meets, and the session may be postponed by the government for forty days. The present cabinet consequently may remain in power until the end of August.

Upholds Pennsylvania Tax Law.

Washington, June 15.—The supreme court upheld the validity of the Pennsylvania law laying on foreign insurance companies an annual tax upon all premiums on life insurance by residents of Pennsylvania, whether paid at one of the agencies in Pennsylvania or at the home office of insurance companies in other states.

Man Dies of Black Hand Stabs.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 15.—Stab wounds received by Felix Jonick, of Hilldale, one of which bore the mark of the Black Hand society, caused his death in the City hospital, where he had been unconscious since being discovered early on Sunday morning. He died the second day, a supposed victim of the Black Hand, since Saturday morning.

GERMANS IN DOUBLE DRIVE TO LEMBERG

Drive Russians From Positions
on San River.

Berlin, June 15.—Official announcement was made here that General von Mackensen has occupied the Russian positions along the entire front in the eastern arena of the fighting, from Cyreniawa to Sienawa.

These places are in Galicia. Sienawa is eighteen miles northwest of Jaroslau, on the river San.

The German statement follows:
"Eastern theater of war: In the neighborhood of Kuzle, northwest of Shavli, a few enemy positions were taken. Three officers and 200 men were taken prisoners. Southeast of the road from Mariampol to Kovno
our troops took the first Russian line by storm. Three officers and 313 men were captured."

"Southeastern theater of war: General von Mackensen began an attack
over a line extending seventy kilometers (forty-three miles). Starting from their positions at Cyreniawa, northwest of Mosiska, and at Sianawa,
the enemy's positions have been taken
along the entire length of this front.
Sixteen thousand prisoners fell into our hands on Sunday."

KILL PRISONER AT LYNCHING

Negro Slain and Six White Men Wounded in Struggle.

Winnboro, S. C., June 15.—Utes
Smith, colored, charged with attacking a white woman, was killed; Clyde Isenhour was fatally wounded and five officers, including Sheriff A. D.
Hood, also were shot during a riot
when a mob attempted to take Smith
from the officers.

Smith was to have been placed on trial. Sheriff Hood and his deputies, with Smith under close guard, had reached the court house, when a mob of armed men attempted to seize the prisoner.

Some one fired at Smith. The shooting became general and lasted ten minutes. During the fighting that followed Smith's body was riddled with bullets.

$1,250,000,000 More For War.

London, June 15.—An additional estimate of $1,250,000,000 in the cost of the war for England during the year ending March, 1916, was introduced in parliament. This almost doubles the original estimate, the increase being made necessary by the increased demand for munitions. Money also is being advanced to Italy to carry on the war against Austria.

Ninety-Cent Gas Rate Upheld.

Trenton, June 15.—The court of errors and appeals affirmed the decision of the state supreme court, which upheld an order of the board of public utility commissioners for a rate of 90 cents for gas in the Passaic district of the Public Service Gas company. The court previously had reversed the 90-cent rate.

His Movie Closed; Goes Insane.

South Bethlehem, Pa., June 15.—
Alexander Ojek, owner of a moving picture theater here, became violently insane as the result of work because the factory inspectors closed his theater on the ground that there were insufficient exits. Ojek was taken to the Rittersville asylum.

HONOR OLD GLORY EVERY DAY IN YEAR

Wear the Flag Always, Is the President's Plea.

CALLS FOR PATRIOTISM

Heart of America Shall Interpret
Heart of World, He Says in Flag
Day Speech.

Washington, June 15.—President Wilson, speaking at Flag Day exercises here, urged Americans to remember their patriotism on other days than national holidays and to carry the flag of the country ever in their hearts.

The president made no direct reference to the European war or to international questions, but he was applauded whenever he made any reference to the patriotism of the people of the United States.

The exercises were held on the south steps of the treasury building.
When the president arrived a large audience stood and cheered until he waved his hands for silence.

Introducing the president, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo said that the meeting was to pay homage to the flag "of our country at a time when it has a deeper significance than ever before in the world's history, when it is the hope of civilization."

"For me," said President Wilson,
"the flag does not express a mere body of vague sentiments. It is the embodiment, not of a sentiment, but of a history, and no man can rightly serve under that flag who has not caught some of the meaning of that history."

"You do not create the meaning of a national life by any literary exposition of it, but by the actual daily endeavors of a great people to do the tasks of the day and live up to the ideals of honesty and righteousness and just conduct."

"And as we think of these things, our tribute is to those men who have created this experience. Of these men we feel that they have shown us the way. They have not been afraid to go before. They have known that they were speaking the thoughts of a great people when they led that great people along the paths of achievement."

"There was not a single swash-buckler among them. They were men of sober, quiet thought, the more effective because there was no bluster in it. They were men who thought along the lines of duty, not along the lines of self-aggrandizement. They were men, in short, who thought of the people whom they served and not of themselves."

"But while we think of them and do honor to them as those who have shown us the way, let us not forget that the real experience and life of a nation lies with the great multitude of unknown men. They constitute the body of the nation. This flag is the essence of their daily endeavors.
This flag does not express any more than what they are and what they desire to be, and as I think of the life of this great nation it seems to me that we sometimes look to the wrong places for its sources."

"There are no days of special patriotism. There are no days when you should be more patriotic than on other days."

"I am solemnized in the presence of such a day. I would not undertake to speak your thoughts. You must interpret them for me. But I do feel that back not only of every public official, but of every man and woman of the United States, there marches that great host which has brought up to the present day; the host that has never forgotten the vision which it saw at the birth of the nation; the host which always responds to the dictates of humanity and of liberty;
the host that will always constitute the strength and the great body of friends of every man who does his duty to the United States."

"I am sorry that you do not wear
a little flag of the Union every day instead of some days; and I can only ask you, if you lose the physical emblem, to be sure that you wear it in your heart, and the heart of America shall interpret the heart of the world."

The exercises were attended by Secretary Lansing, Secretary Daniels and Senator Simmons and many other government officials. A chorus of treasury department employees sang patriotic songs before and after the president's address.

Washington has begun to be impressed with the feeling that suggestions of efforts to bring about peace are not being dismissed now with off-hand declarations that it is foolish to talk of such a thing.

To a certain extent, the peace talk is believed to be attributable to the attitude President Wilson has assumed in dealing with Germany in connection with the sinking of the Lusitania and the general submarine war fare against merchant shipping.

CHICAGO IS IN GRIP OF STRIKE

Thousands Walk to Work, Some Using Roller Skates.

Chicago, June 15.—The first day of the big Chicago street car strike has passed without serious mishap. No surface cars were run and only a few trains on the elevated.

There was nothing resembling regular service except on the suburban lines of the steam railroads, and these were far from adequate. A brick that was thrown through a window of an elevated train was the only case of violence.

All kinds of vehicles were pressed into service, even roller skates among some of the young folks, but tens of thousands walked to work.

The streets had the appearance, except for the general good humor with which the situation was accepted, of the avenues of some city in the war zone from which the population was flying.

Owners of automobiles, driving to or from the city, submitted generally to the amiable brigandage of those seeking rides. Few machines traveled with empty seats.

Arrangements to provide 5000 strike breakers to operate the cars and to guard property were put into operation.

Banquet halls, sample rooms and even the roofs of the large downtown hotels have been converted into sleeping quarters for nearly 15,000 persons who will be obliged to live near their places of business during the strike. Thousands of persons have planned to sleep in their offices.

WEIGHTED CORPSE IN RIVER

Man Drowned at Wilmington Apparently a German in Middle Life.

Wilmington, June 15.—The body of an unidentified man, apparently a German, between fifty and fifty-five years old, was found floating in the Christiania river near the cut-off bridge of the Pennsylvania railroad
by an employee of a stone barge.

The man was dressed in a black suit of good quality and his underclothing was of good texture. He wore well made shoes. About his body was a belt, to which was fastened a piece of iron weighing about twenty pounds.
In his pockets was found a penknife,
key, a Philadelphia brewer's paper and several envelopes and sheets of paper banded with mourning about the edges.

Negro Lynched in Georgia.

Toccoa, Ga., June 15.—Sam Steph-

JITNEYS HIT TROLLEY CO.

Earnings of Street Cars in Philadelphia Decrease $116,000 in Month.

Philadelphia, June 15.—The Rapid Transit company's statement for May shows a decrease in gross passenger earnings for the month of $116,362, which is equivalent to 2,327,240 fares.

An official of the company several weeks ago estimated that jitneys were costing the company about $2000 a day, which would amount to $62,000 for the month of May, or 1-240,000 fares which the company lost through the increasing number of "jits."

PATRIOTS BACK IN GOOD FORM

Take First Game from Hagerstown with Little Trouble. Herrel Pitches Well against Veterans. Jarasick Has Hand Hurt.

Those youthful Patriots were pitted against the Hagerstown veterans on Nixon Field Monday afternoon and took the game easily 5 to 0. While the Blues were resorting to tripping tactics and disputing Umpire Glatts' decisions, Plank's boys were playing clean ball and batting in runs.

Discouraged by the reverses of the past week, the fans turned out only about 300 strong for the first home game but those who saw Bigler rap out four clean hits and steal three bases, those who saw Benny Williams accept nine chances at short stop without a slip and Ira Plank get by safely with eleven chances, and those who saw Herrel pitch big league ball will be out again for the next game and take with them many more.

Gettysburg had it all over Hagerstown from the very start. In both the second and third innings Gettysburg had the bases full but could not score, and it was not until the fifth that they started getting runs. The first tally came when Kane got a clean hit, took second on Williams' sacrifice, third on a passed ball and scored on Bigler's hit. Bigler was caught at second. Mahaffie drew a pass, stole second and tried to make home when Plank hit to short. Fans thought Doeppie, Hagerstown's catcher, dropped the ball but Glatts called him out and the inning was over.

Two more were added in the sixth in hollow fashion. Jarasick got four balls, was sacrificed to second by Bream and scored when one went through Doeppie. Herrel got a hit, took second when Kane was safe on an error and scored on a passed ball. Gettysburg's only earned run came in the seventh. Bigler got a hit, stole second and scored on Plank's hit. In the eighth Bream hit safely, stole second, was sacrificed by Herrel to third and scored when Kane's rap to center slipped out of Walters' hands.

Jarasick had his hand split between the thumb and finger and will be out of the game for several days. Mahaffie taking his place behind the bat.

Are You Too Fat?
If you are too stout don't take fat reducing medicines. Cut down on your diet, get out-of-door exercise, and you will assume normal lines and reduce to normal weight. Avoid sweets, eggs, cream, fat meats, and especially potatoes. Live mainly on lettuce, spinach, cabbage, lean meats, young onions, celery, tomatoes, etc. Take salted toast instead of bread and butter. If you cease to give your body fat-making foods you will cease creating fat cells. It is no trick to reduce if you practice self-denial.

Method.
There is no one able or anxious to deny the value of a method. But there are many who realize that method is not everything, and that strict adherence to it sometimes becomes a nuisance. There is a madness in hard and fast rules. The strict adherence to some method is almost as bad as having no method at all. We should remember that our actions have, at all times, to be guided by circumstances.

Drums on Horseback.
The earliest date at which drums were carried on horseback in England appears to be 1542, when Henry VIII sent to Vienna for kettle drums that could be played on horseback "after the Hungarian manner." Mounted bands were in vogue in the last decade of the eighteenth century, the two regiments of life guards having them in 1895.

MASON AND DIXON LINE THE LATEST

Western Maryland Adds that to Official Title of the Road. Explanation of Railroad's Claim to it. Will Feature New Name.

Through the addition of "Mason and Dixon Line" to its title, the Western Maryland Railway Company will henceforth be linked with an important historical event, which, more than 150 years ago, resulted in permanently fixing the boundary between Maryland and Pennsylvania, and ending the dispute relative to the line.

The decision to perpetuate the name of the two eminent surveyors and the great work which they accomplished in colonial days has just been announced by General Passenger Agent Charles F. Stewart, although the matter has been under consideration by him for several weeks. In the future the title of the road will be "the Western Maryland Railway Company—the Mason and Dixon Line," and will so appear on the printed matter of the system.

The railroad had two reasons for adopting the new name. In the first place, it operates, for the most part, in Maryland and Pennsylvania, the two states through which the line extends, and, in the second place, the road crosses and recrosses the line surveyed at several points in both states.

"No other railroad has adopted this name," said General Passenger Agent Stewart, "and we thought that inasmuch as we are closely linked with the two states in which the survey was mostly made we could rightly lay claim to the name of 'the Mason and Dixon Line.' We had in mind the commemoration of an engineering feat accomplished during the closing years of our history as colonies and just before the United States of America came into existence. The Western Maryland crosses the boundary line near Blue Ridge Summit, again near Cumberland, at Lineboro, at Highfield and in the neighborhood of Pen-Mar.

"Nearly 100 years before the Western Maryland was ever thought of as a railroad the two surveyors, Mason and Dixon, known all over England on account of their engineering ability, came to this country for the purpose of running an east and west line through the wilds of the eastern portion of the country. They were brought here by Lord Baltimore and Thomas and Richard Penn, of London. They began their labors in 1763 and in 1765 had pushed their way to the Susquehanna river, when they received instructions to go forward through the forests of Maryland and Pennsylvania. In 1766 they were on the summit of the Little Allegheny Mountains.

"About this time the Indians began to give the surveyors trouble. They questioned the right of the two men to intrude in the wilderness inhabited by them and assumed a threatening attitude. It thus became necessary to carry on negotiations with the six Indian nations, and these negotiations being concluded the surveyors and members of their party resumed operations the following year. As the work progressed the red men again began to harass the surveyors, and so violent in their opposition to the whites did they become that 26 members of the party quit work and returned home.

"The two surveyors, now having only a handful of men, continued their labors, undismayed by the difficulties which they encountered from the Indians, but they sent back to Fort Cumberland for aid.

"At last they reached a point 244 miles from the Delaware river and within 36 miles of the entire distance to be run. At this juncture the surveyors were informed by representatives from the six nations of Indians that the survey must be abandoned.

"There was no alternative and Messrs. Mason and Dixon withdrew, only to have their work completed in later years by other engineers."

SEES VILLA LOSE IN WHICH 5,000

Invited to Trenches to Witness Big Fight, Correspondent Is Caught In Thick of Conflict.

A THRILLINGLY realistic picture of the great night battle at Sild, in which Villa was crushed and 5,000 of his men are said to have died, is given by John W. Roberts, special correspondent of the International News Service, in a dispatch to the New York American. The writer was in the trenches with Villa.

Mr. Roberts wrote his description as the battle proceeded. He was shot through the leg, but was rescued by one of Villa's gunners, an American named T. D. Taylor, who carried him to the shelter of a box car after the defeat and sent off his message for him.

Villa had been teasing Roberts about correspondents reporting fighting they did not see and invited him to see what he promised would be one of the greatest battles ever fought by his men. Roberts went with Villa to the advance trench and began making notes.

It is an old dry ditch, four feet deep, he wrote. Nearly 8,000 soldiers are in this place, the rest of the Villa army having taken positions on the hills to our right. The only sign of the enemy is a cloud of dust four miles away.

No one seems to be excited. It seems as though we are going to have a huge picnic.

A mounted officer just informed Villa that it appeared as though Obregon's forces are going to take the offensive. Villa seems to take this as a huge joke.

Villa Was Confident.

"Let them come," he said, laughing. "Before morning more than half of them will have turned their toes up toward the stars."

Villa invited me to peep over the trench and see the enemy through his field glasses. I could see nothing but a hazy cloud of dust two miles long. Villa has gone to place his artillery.

I have been friends with one Manuel Sosa. He has been a soldier in Villa's army for two years and has never been wounded. He is a good natured fellow, and is always grinning. I like to see him smile.

His soldiers have begun to broil a couple of chunks of beef. "You must eat with us, amigo," Manuel said as he borrowed a cigarette from me.

As we ate I asked him if he had no children.

"Si, senor, we've had two, but during the battle of Torreón, while they were sleeping under a tree, a shell struck them, and we never saw them again."

Manuel saw me looking at the red sunset and laughed. "That's strange," he said. "God predicts the spilling of much Carranzista blood tonight. God is on our side. That's why we always win."

An infernal sound like the ripping of canvas split the silence overhead. A moment later a whistling explosion was heard in our rear. I jumped from where I sat, trembling violently. Manuel didn't even look up.

"The enemy has begun its cannonading," he grinned.

I am the only excited person in the whole trench. The other soldiers, who have not finished their suppers, are still eating. The soldaderas don't seem to be afraid, either.

The red in the sky has turned to a deep purple. The Villa artillery on our right has begun to boom. To me the air seems charged with a sinister something that I can't describe.

Carranzistas Open Attack.

Away to our left there is heavy rifle fire. Each shot sounds like two because it echoes against the hills. No one seems to worry. A great, fat soldier to my right is sound asleep. He is lying on the sand, and his face is covered with his big sombrero.

A young captain not over eighteen years of age has ridden up to our part of the trench.

"The enemy is sending a column in this direction!" he shouts. "First sergeants, prepare your men! There is a column of our own men to the rear who will shoot down any one who attempts to flee!"

He looked curiously at me, smiled and galloped away.

A soldadera woke up the fat man, and he has begun to curse for all he is worth.

It is dark now. There seems to be fighting all around us, but I can see none of it. Each side has discovered the positions of the other's artillery by the tongues of fire emanating from the cannon at each shot.

Every man in our trench is patiently waiting. The soldaderas—most of them are sitting down in the ditch, smoking like myself. A horse which was standing outside the trench near us was killed, and it rolled in on our right, putting out the campfire.

I wonder if I am only greatly excited or deathly scared. Perhaps it's both. I have broken three cigarette papers trying to roll a cigarette. Manuel's soldadera smiles and offers me one of her own ready made chorritos.

A young girl further up the trench just screamed. "There come the d— Carranzistas!" She is running this way now, greatly excited. Her hair is Distinction of Terms.

"Of course you favor the uplift!" "I don't know," replied the busy man. "I'm a plain, practical person. Sometimes I think the uplift depends too much on literature and science. What I favor is the boost."

GREAT BATTLE MEN ARE KILLED

While Mexicans and Their Wives Fall Dead Beside Him, He Describes Scene Until Wounded.

down, and a fixed grin gives her a diabolical expression. No one seems to notice her. She runs, screaming the news:

"There they come, the Briones Carranzistas! Viva Villa! You are all my lovers if you fight bravely!"

I have never heard so much noise in all my life. It seems as though I had taken a peep into hell.

The fat man is swearing again. He was hit in the shoulder. He claims that he killed over ten Carranzistas, and because of the bullet in his shoulder has promised to annihilate the enemy's army if it attacks again.

I am not trembling so much now because I can see that I am comparatively safe so long as I keep low in the ditch. No one in our immediate vicinity was hurt except the fat man.

Terrific firing is going on all over the prairie. Fifty of Villa's cannon are trying to dislodge as many of the enemy's cannon on the hills.

Villa Now Looks Worried.

Thousands of shots are popping to our right, to our left and on front. I have decided not to peep over the trench.

"There they come again!" Manuel says.

The fat man, despite his wounded shoulder, has jumped up and is ominously clicking his rifle. I am sure that our men will repulse the enemy again, so I am not afraid. I have begun to enjoy it.

The popping has commenced again all around the trench like so many firecrackers. None of the men seems to be taking careful aim. They just fire, click the chamber and fire again. When the five bullets have gone they snatch a clip from their belts and refill the gun. The fat man is firing faster than anybody else, grunting and cursing in the meantime.

General Villa dashed up madly a few moments ago, accompanied by some officers. For the first time since I have known him he looks worried and greatly excited. His teeth are gritted and his white silk shirt is bespattered with blood.

"Fight like you have never fought before, muchachitos," he roars. "The enemy are going to try and break us at this place. I have sent for reinforcements, but the enemy are hurling the bulk of their army here. For the glory of your country, fight! We can hold them until the reinforcements arrive."

He turned to me, but there was no smile on his face. "I am sorry I got you into this, but since you are here, lie low in the trench. There is no chance for you to go to the rear now. God help you!"

He has gone now, but I can hear him urging his men further down the trench. The blood seems to be clogged in my veins.

Woman Dies Near Him.

I reached for the botija of water, but dropped it. Manuel's wife—Lord, but she's brave—holds it for me while I drink. Everybody is becoming excited. Manuel's hand is trembling when he reaches for cartridges. The fat man has stopped cursing.

A fragment of stone hit Manuel's wife on the cheek. She is bleeding. Lord, but she's brave! The enemy's cannon have been turned upon us.

The fat man was killed. He was shot in the throat and falls besides me, the blood oozing like red foam from the hole.

Manuel has shouted hysterically that an enemy's column of infantry is approaching. He has told his wife to leave him and run to the rear. A shell bursts over our heads to the right with a horrible explosion and the balls of shrapnel whistle on their mission of death. No one seems to be calm.

Everybody is yelling. Sounds of men shouting and women weeping mingle with groans and curses. Manuel says, "God has gone against us."

Some one is crying for water. Manuel's wife is weeping. Manuel's wife dies. The enemy are within seventy yards of us. Manuel has dropped his rifle and has burst out crying. He holds his wife's head. Her face is full of blood.

(Next day) I am lying on a blood covered cot in a box car, five miles away from the trench. Taylor, an American machine gun operator, brought me here. I remember having heard some one yell: "Retreat! Retreat!"

The next thing I remember was that some one dashed Manuel's brains out with a butt of a gun. I had tucked my notebook under my belt. I don't remember what became of my hat, my blankets or camera. I was running with the rest, but suddenly felt very weak.

All the muscles in my right leg seemed to refuse to work. I knew I wasn't shot, because I felt no pain. I fell down. Taylor picked me up. The doctor says a bullet pierced my leg above the knee. It is not a bad wound—nothing but a clean cut Mauser bullet hole. I shall be able to walk in a few days.

Be Practical.

Be doers rather than critics of the deeds that others do. Stand stoutly for your ideals; but keep in mind that they can only be realized, even partially, by practical methods of achievement.—Theodore Roosevelt.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Hall Bonistelle, artist-photographer, preparing for the day's work in his studio, is reminded by Flodie Fisher, his assistant, of a party he is to give in the studio that night, and warns that his business is in bad financial shape.

CHAPTER II—Mr. Doremus, executive and justice of the peace, calls and informs Hall that his Uncle John's will has left him $4,000,000 on condition that he marry before his twenty-eighth birthday, which begins at midnight that night.

CHAPTER III—Mrs. T. M. Royaton calls at the studio and asks her to marry him at once. She spurs for time, but finally agrees to give him an answer at the party that night.

CHAPTER IV—Miss Carolyn Dallys calls and Hall proposes to her. She agrees to give him an answer at the party.

CHAPTER V—Rosamund Gale, artist model, calls. Hall tries to rush her into an immediate marriage, but she, too, defers her answer until the evening. Flodie says Hall has ordered trouble delivered at the house.

CHAPTER VI—Flodie tries to show Hall a certain way out of the mix-up, but he is obtuse. Jonas Hassingbury, heir to the millions in case Hall fails to marry on time, plots with Flodie to block Hall's marriage to any of the three women before midnight.

CHAPTER VII—Flodie arranges to have Hall's three intended meet at the studio as if by chance. Carolyn and Rosamund come in first and compare notes. They think Hall is perhaps going crazy.

CHAPTER VIII—Mrs. Royaton comes in and much feminine fencing ensues, in which Flodie uses her own foil adroitly.

CHAPTER IX—Hall comes in and the ladies retire for conference. Hall is worried lest they confide in each other, but Flodie sarcastically reassures him. Alfred, the janitor, brings in a newspaper with the story of the queer legacy. The ladies' alliance to humiliate Hall dissolves and they retire to plan war for the $4,000,000 prize.

CHAPTER X.

Flodie's account book slammed shut. Her head fell on her arms, face down upon the table. She gave way to a burning torrent of tears. It was all up, then! Not one of those three women but would fight for Hall now, to the death. Oh, Flodie could read their faces! Hadn't each one of them, even while demanding the others' loyalty, been sleekly planning to betray her own pledged word to gain the coveted money? What chance had poor neglected Flodie, who hadn't even been asked? She dried her eyes and looked up at the clock. It was three-fifteen. As she watched the dial, her face changed subtly. Dropping her eyes she began to think in real earnest. Her time was short. If she were to play Cinderella at the party tonight, it behooved her to find a fairy godmother as soon as possible. Wouldn't that have to be Hall—who else?

She dabbed her eyes in water, then went to the door of the studio.

"Oh, Mr. Bonistelle!" she called. He came in looking anxious. "Lord, I've been worrying myself sick!" he confessed. "What in the world were they up to, anyway?"

"Oh, they seemed to be talking about some club, or society, or something that they were interested in. They wanted Rosamund Gale to join, I think."

"Well, I'm glad it was no worse than that." He looked at his watch. "Lord, I must be off. I've got to hock this timepiece and pay an installment on the ring. I don't care much for rings on a woman's hand, especially if it's pretty. Now yours, Flodie, is perfect." She tried to hide her hands, but he took them, and held them up and looked critically. Flodie closed her eyes, that the tears might not come out.

"Say, Flo—I s'pose I'll miss you like the devil, after I'm married," he went on, dropping her hands. "I've got kind of used to you, you know. It'll seem funny not to have you round to talk to and laugh at. What's the matter? You don't really mind my laughing at you occasionally, do you, Flo?"

"Oh, no, I love it, Mr. Bonistelle!"

"Say, Flo, remember that first time you ever came in here? D'you know I liked you the moment I set eyes on you?"

Flodie cast down her head. "So did I, you," she said.

"It always makes me smile, just to look at you, somehow. You're such a queer little tyke. Always happy, aren't you, Flo?"

She looked up bravely. "Oh, yes!"

The telephone bell rang. Hall snatched up the receiver savagely. "Hello! . . . Who is this? . . . Oh, yes! Of course . . . Oh! You will? By Jove, that's great! . . . Why, yes, I'm delighted . . . But I am, Rosamund, why—why, I'm the happiest man in the world! You've no idea what a relief it is . . . Sure! That's just what I was going to suggest. Yes, we'll do it tonight. Fine! All right, we'll talk it over when you come. Good-by, dear!"

He hung up the instrument slowly.

"Rosamund's accepted me. Flodie, I'll be a millionaire by tonight. What d'you think, she's promised to marry me immediately; we'll have it over this evening."

He arose thoughtfully. "Well, I guess that's settled, then. Rosamund's it!"

Flodie, unable to control herself, had risen and was making for the stock-room, when he called her back. "Say, Flo, wait a minute." He went up to her kindly. "Perhaps after I'm married we can arrange it somehow—"

"Oh, no, Mr. Bonistelle," Flodie shook her head decidedly. "I shall go over to Deerfield. You know it's

He followed her up with all his egoism. "Why, see here, Flo!" he exclaimed. "It's all as simple as daylight. Why in the world didn't I think of it before? Here we are bullly good pals—get along fine, don't we?—never had a single quarrel. You're right; you're the only one that does care enough for me to make me work and keep me up to my best. I believe you could actually make something of me. Flodie, I'm going to make you a lady of leisure! Say, Flodie, I'm going to kiss you! For the first time, too!"

He went up to her, but she darted away like a cat. "Oh, no! Mr. Bonistelle! Don't!" she protested.

He stopped in amazement. "Why not? What's the matter?"

"Oh, you've proposed to three women today!" she lamented pitifully. She sat down and looked at him with a haggard face.

"Well, what if I did? They didn't accept me, did they? Haven't I a right to ask somebody else, under the circumstances—with so much at stake? Why, they may all refuse me, even now; I'm not at all certain! I can't risk a fortune on their whims, blowing hot and blowing cold! D'you think I intend to stand for this 'I-will-and-I-won't' business? Not much! I'm glad they did put me off, now. It's the luckiest thing in the world! It gives me a good excuse to take you. Why, I was so rattled, Flodie, it never occurred to me I could marry you."

Flodie rose; her hazel eyes snapped. "Oh, didn't it? Well, then, Mr. Bonistelle, evidently there are several other things that didn't occur to you! Do you think you can treat me this way and expect me to stand for it?"

"What way? Lord, haven't I asked you to marry me, Flo?" He stared at her in surprise.

"No, you haven't asked me! No, you've insulted me! All you've done is to announce coolly that you have decided to marry me!" Flodie, aroused, fairly stormed now.

"Oh, pshaw—I thought you understood, Flo. Of course I'll ask you, if you want the conventional, orthodox proposal." He smiled patronizingly at her whim, as at a pouting child, then dropped gracefully upon one knee. "Will you marry me, Flodie?"

There was a new note in Flodie's voice. "No!" she cried harshly. "Get up, Mr. Bonistelle! I'm afraid you've made a mistake. You've forgotten who I am, haven't you? Why, I'm only the girl with the 'funny face'! I'm just a 'queer little tyke,' who is 'always happy!' Ha! Ha! Ha! Why don't you laugh? I thought I always made you smile? Just a 'jolly good pal'—that's all I am! Didn't you say so yourself?"

"But, Flodie!" Hall approached her placatingly, amazed at her outburst.

She pushed him away. "No, sir! Not much! I'm not so anxious to be a lady of leisure as all that, Mr. Bonistelle! What! Marry you, with all the love left out? No, sir! I should say not!"

"But, Flodie!" Hall could scarcely believe his ears. "Confound it, what's got into you? Why, hang it all, I had no idea you felt like that!" He stared at her.

She made a queer, whimsical face—at herself or Hall, who knows?—and went on:

"No, I'm only little Flodie, the Egg Boiler! And you're so used to me, that when you do want to get married, you propose to one, two, three women before you give me a thought. I only come in as a last resort—Flodie, the Forlorn Hope! Mr. Bonistelle, do you think I'm the sort of girl to marry like that?"

Flodie, transformed by this long-pent-up rage, was a new and splendid creature; her eyes shot sparks, the color flamed upon her cheeks.

Hall, dumfounded, stared at her, speechless. If a baby had suddenly attacked him he could not have been more amazed. He didn't know her in this aspect; she took his breath away like a strong wind. His impulse was to defend himself, resist, but he was overcome by her emotion. He struck out any way—blindly, like a swimmer in rapids; he tried to placate her.

"But, Flodie—dear! I know—but I want you!"

"Oh, yes, I know you want me—and why? So that you can win four millions of dollars. That's all you want. You'll have to get married, so you'd better take me! I make you laugh! Oh, it's as simple as daylight, is it? Well, I'm not so simple as I look. When I marry a man, Hall Bonistelle, it'll be because he loves me, remember that; and not just to help catch a fortune!"

Hall watched her, fascinated, as she strode up and down, her eyes flashing, her body lithe and eager, accentuating her anger with free, unconscious gestures. "By Jove!" he exclaimed, "I wouldn't know you! Why, I never saw you like this before! What's happened to you? I didn't know it was in you!"

She turned scornfully. "Oh, I've got a lot in me that you'll never know, Hall Bonistelle. I've got a little pride, for one thing."

He seized her hand; in spite of herself, she let it rest in his, while he asked, soothingly: "And haven't you a little love, too, Flodie?"

She snatched her hand away. "Love! What do you know about love!" she exclaimed scornfully, and walked away from him. "Why, your janitor knows more about real love than you do—a thousand times!"

Still he stood and looked at her as at a marvel. "Flodie Fisher," he declared, "you may believe it or not, but I am in love with you, I swear I am! Why, you're magnificent! By Jove, I never saw such spirit! Why in the world haven't you ever shown me what you were, before? I'd have proposed to you six months ago!"

"Well, you're too late, now!" She was trembling. Suddenly her strength left her. She burst into tears.

He went up to her appealingly. "See here, Flo, I do want you, don't you understand that, little girl? And I'm going to have you, too, no matter what happens! D—n that money, anyway! I wish it never had been left me! See here, Flo, let's begin all over again! Come on out right now and marry me, will you—will you?"

"No!" she sobbed.

Now there are two "no's" a woman can say. One comes through clenched teeth; it has a rising inflection; the other is an out-and-out bark and has the downward fling. Few men know what different things they mean. Hall stood silent for a moment, watching her. Then his tone changed. "Well, I don't know that I blame you," he said finally. "I've been all kinds of a cad today, but I guess this is the limit. Of course I've been blind. You're right. I've been so close to you I haven't really seen you. And now that I do, it's too late. Say, Flodie, did you mean that? Is it really too late? Won't you let me prove that I am in earnest, at last?"

"Oh, how can I believe you? You're not honest! You've been lying all day! You've lied to Mrs. Royaton, and you've lied to Miss Dallys and Rosamund. And now you're lying to me! No!" she said, "I'll never believe you." Then she dropped her head on her hands over the table. "Go away!" she sobbed.

"You've No Idea What a Relief It Is—Sure!"

Hall walked toward the door, wretched and ashamed.

"Isn't there any chance for me?" he pleaded. "Don't you love me enough to forgive me, dear? Don't say no—Flodie!"

She looked up with tears in her eyes. She had a strange, exalted look on her face as she spoke through clenched teeth. "Hall Bonistelle," she said, "I will not marry you! There!" She turned away.

Hall suddenly caught fire. He shook his fist at her. "Flodie Fisher, you shall marry me!" The door slammed.

As soon as he had gone, Flodie jumped up, and stood for a moment thinking. She glanced at the clock, scowled, then walked stealthily to the door and listened. Opening it, she looked out into the hall.

"Oh, Alfred!" she called, and then she waited.

In a moment the janitor appeared, pale and sad as a specter. "Yes, Miss Fisher?"

She regarded him eagerly. "Alfred," she said, "you said you'd do anything for me, didn't you?"

"Yes, Miss Fisher, that's what I did!"

"You will do anything, no matter what I ask?"

"Oh, yes, Miss Fisher! Indeed I will!"

"Then go and get your hat and coat—hurry!"

"Yes, Miss Fisher."

He left hastily, and Flodie went to her closet and drew forth her own hat and coat and put them on, still absorbed in thought. She was drawing on her last glove when Alfred reappeared.

"What is it you want me to do, Miss Fisher?"

"Alfred," she replied, smiling ethically on him, "I want you to go down to the city hall with me. We're going to get a marriage license!"

And before he could reply she had hurried with him out of the door.

WAR WIPES OUT BRITAIN'S ENTIRE PEACE ARMY.
The total of British casualties from the beginning of the war to May 31 was 258,069 men. Premier Asquith told the commons.
The list he gave was:
Killed	Wounded	Missing
Officers . . . 2,327	6,498	1,129
Other ranks 67,015	147,482	52,417
Total . . . 70,342	153,980	53,546
Losses in the naval division and in the various small wars in Africa and the near east are not included.
In the first six months the British losses were 104,000. In the next four months they were 154,000.
In the last two months they have averaged about 2,000 men a day.
The army Great Britain just sent to the front numbered 170,000 men.
The entire British army at the opening of the war numbered 322,000 men. It is believed that few of these men are now left.
The total number of men sanctioned so far by parliament for the war is 3,300,000.
The naval losses due to foe are given as 6,498 officers and men.

His Desire.

The business manager of an amateur attraction in a Kansas town made modest demands on the manager of the opera house. "What kind of a setting will you want?" the theater manager asked. "Well," replied the other, "we'd like to have seats for everybody that comes."

Genuine Prescription For All Rheumatism

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Back, Says The People's Drug Store.

Rheuma—that is the name of the scientific prescription that is putting old rheumatism out of business.

Rheuma cures by driving the uric acid from the blood. It also acts directly on the kidneys and is better for them than most so-called kidney cures.

Porter Smith, Dobbin, W. Va., writes: "I have been a great sufferer from rheumatism for about 26 years. The disease had become chronic. I began taking Rheuma with little faith in its virtues, but was better from the first day I began its use, and at this time have no more pains."

The People's Drug Store and all druggists sell Rheuma, and no rheumatic sufferer can afford not to use it. 50 cents a bottle. Your money back if not satisfied.

The In-Between Month

June is one of the in-between months in merchandising that brings many attractive values to the thrifty shopper.

Storekeepers are anxious to reduce stocks—and the new things they bring in are for warmer weather.

Remainders of spring merchandise are offered for quick disposal at lowest prices.

The advertising in live newspaper like The TIMES becomes more than usually interesting.

For it not only tells of the new things of summer coming in but also tells of attractive values in many lines.

BRYAN HAS PLAN TO END THE WAR

Will Issue Statement on the Great Conflict.

LAST "FOR THE PRESENT"

It is said in Washington his break with President was over the so-called Peace Treaties.

Washington, June 15.—Former Secretary Bryan announced through his friends that he will issue another statement proposing a means to end the war.

The statement will not deal with his resignation from the cabinet, but with "the war," as it is; the causes that led to it and the way out.

The statement will be entitled "The Causeless War." It was said that it would be Mr. Bryan's last "for the present."

Mr. Bryan went to Old Point Comfort. In his statement Saturday he referred to the softening of the second American note to Berlin after his resignation, but it is noted he said he did not consider that the document had been sufficiently changed to cause him to withdraw his resignation.

While the White House and state department are not commenting upon Mr. Bryan's utterances, persons close to the president point out that not only was the note shown to Mr. Bryan in its final form, but the president himself had expressed a hope at his farewell meeting with Mr. Bryan an hour before the note was cabled that some way could be found to make unnecessary the secretary's resignation, especially because of the possible misconstruction in Germany of a change at this time.

The statement so freely circulated in the last few days, that the cause of the break between President Wilson and Mr. Bryan was the unwillingness of the president to apply the principles of the secretary's so-called peace treaties to the dispute with Germany has brought up the question as to just what Mr. Bryan's peace treaties mean.

It is admitted that, broad as is the scheme of the former secretary for the development of a system of interlocking peace treaties with nations of the world, the scheme is impracticable. Thirty nations have signed peace treaties with the United States. Thirty-four nations, including Germany, have accepted the principles enunciated in Secretary Bryan's prospectus of his plan, but Germany was at pains not to sign any such international agreement with any nation.

VETOES COLD STORAGE BILL

Governor Finds Many Defects in Uniform Measure.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 15.—Pennsylvania's cold storage law will remain as it is for another two years at least.

Governor Brumbaugh announced his veto of the proposed uniform cold storage act, and having some time ago vetoed the bill to repeal the act of 1912, conditions remain as they have been for the last twenty-one months.

In vetoing the bill the governor admits that there have been complaints about the present law being too drastic, but fails to see in the Buckman bill adequate remedies. He suggests that the people interested in the cold storage business and the state officials charged with the enforcement of the act get together and agree upon a bill which can be put through the session of 1917 and which will be fair to the public and the business interests.

The penitentiary is being built in Centre county, where state forestry lands were set aside for its use and additional properties purchased, so that convicts may do farm work and help the institution to become self-supporting.

Russia Wants False Limbs. Washington, June 15.—Among the consular reports to the state department was an inquiry from Moscow for the addresses of American manufacturers of artificial limbs. Many such inquiries on this subject have come to the department from Russia.

Must Pay Virginia $12,393,929. Washington, June 15.—The supreme court decided the long standing Virginia-West Virginia debt case, holding West Virginia should pay $12,393,929 as its net share of the Virginia debt at the time of the partition of the states.

Turks Attack Germans. Athens, June 15.—Anti-war riots are reported to have broken out in Constantinople. German soldiers were attacked in the streets by Turks.

SUNDAY'S PIANIST THROWS UP HIS JOB

Bentley Ackley, Who Composed Hymns, Resigns.

Philadelphia, June 15.—Bentley D. Ackley, who became widely known as Billy Sunday's right-hand man, secretary and pianist in the recent revival here, has resigned from the Sunday forces and announced that he will expose a lot of unpleasant inside stuff of the evangelistic system which he helped to direct.

The financial side of the revival system as it was operated in Philadelphia will probably be the basis of Mr. Ackley's charges.

It is understood that Billy Sunday's former secretary will also tell of bitter personal jealousies and bickerings which raged in the party, and finally split it with the resignation of Rev. Edward H. Emmett, the advance man of the party, and Mr. Ackley himself.

Homer Rodeheaver, according to the friends of Mr. Ackley, is to be shown as a great profit-taker of the Sunday system, whose income was second only to Billy Sunday's.

Mr. Ackley composed the music for some of the most popular hymns sung, and it is reported that his resentment began when these hymns, published and sold by Rodeheaver at a large profit, brought him only $10 each.

Moscow Mohs Rob Germans.

Moscow, June 15.—Moscow for the last two days has seen street rioting and anti-Germans demonstrations of a serious nature. The police have found it impossible to control the crowds, and the people indulged their desire for looting and destruction until they were tired out.

THE CIGARETTE BEETLE.

This Tough Little Pest Will Flourish Even in Cayenne Pepper.

A tiny but withal practically omnivorous little fellow, the cigarette beetle is known to science as Lasioderma serripenne. It is common in nearly all tropical and subtropical countries, and, as a sample of its catholic tastes, we may mention that it will breed in raisins, rhubarb, cayenne pepper, rice, ginger, dried fish, upholstery, ergot, turmeric, books, cane work, gun wads, liquorice, saffron, belladonna and in pyrethrum powder strong enough to kill cockroaches—a varied catalogue to be sure. It is chiefly as a pest of tobacco, in various forms, however, that the cigarette beetle has become notorious. The greatest damage is done to the wrappers of cigars and cigarettes, through which it eats small holes.

The larvae live upon the tobacco leaf, and a very interesting fact is that the size of the adult beetles, into which the larvae eventually develop depends not only on the quantity, but also on the quality, of tobacco that has been devoured in the immature stages. Experiment has shown that in every case beetles obtained from selected cigars were double the size of those from low grade tobacco. It will be remembered that the cheese "skinner" is partial to the better cheeses; similarly, the cigarette beetle is somewhat of a connoisseur, for given a free choice cigarettes are always the first to be infested, while cheap grade tobacco and cigars kept in the same room will remain uninfested for years.

Apart from the actual destruction of the tobacco leaf, the larvae spoil its aroma and accordingly depreciate its value; it is some consolation to know that the adults themselves do no damage.

This little beetle is most difficult to eradicate, and to that end, an experimental X ray machine was specially built at great expense in America. The machine was to be capable of "sterilizing" cigars, on a commercial scale, at the rate of 40,000 a day; voltages of 64,000 to 75,000 and exposures as long as an hour were tried without the slightest effect upon eggs, larvae, pupae or adults—the experiment was a failure.—"Insects and Man," by C. A. Endland.

VICTOR HUGO'S VISION.

The Day When Weapons of War Will Be Regarded as Curiosities.

A day comes when you, France—you, Russia—you, Italy—you, England—you, Germany—all you nations of the continent shall without losing your distinctive qualities and your glorious individuality blend in a higher unity and form a European fraternity, as Normandy, Brittany, Burgundy, Lorraine, Alsace, all the French provinces, blended into France. A day will come when war shall seem as impossible between Paris and London, between Petersburg and Berlin, as between Rotten and Amlens, as between Boston and Philadelphia.

A day will come when bullets and bombs shall be replaced by ballots, by the universal suffrage of the people, by the sacred arbitrament of a great sovereign senate, which shall be to Europe what the parliament is to England, the diet to Germany, the legislative assembly to France. A day will come when a cannon shall be exhibited in our museums as an instrument of torture is now and men shall marvel that such things could be.

A day will come when we shall see those two immense groups, the United States of America and the United States of Europe, in face of each other extending hand to hand over the ocean, exchanging their products, their commerce, their industry, their art; their genius clearing the earth, colonizing deserts and ameliorating creation.

To you I appeal, French, English, Germans, Russians, Slavs, Europeans, Americans, what have we to do to hasten the coming of the great day?

Love one another.—Victor Hugo.

Too Costly.

King George II. once wished to add the Green park, in London, to his palace grounds, whether the people liked it or not. He inquired of his minister as to the cost.

His lordship, mindful of the general discontent then prevalent, answered: "The cost, sir? Oh, it would be a matter of three crowns."

The king took the hint. The people kept their park and the sovereign his triple throne.

IN THE CRISPNESS OF GAUZE AND TAFFETA.

Peach blow pink taffeta waist having a surplus front and back in which silk figured gauze is inserted. It is further decorated with folds of black satin.

The balance of fashionable favor inevitably leans toward this waist in taffeta combined with gauze which has the floral design in it stitched with silk threads. The effect is very dainty and the expense involved small, especially for the woman who is skillful with her needle. The surplus front has an insert of the gauze piped with plain black satin, and as the taffeta is a delicious peach blow pink the contrast is more than effective. Quaint indeed are the deep cuffs, with their fullness above the elbow taken in with gathers. The model in average size requires 1½ yds. 36-inch lining, ½ yard gauze or all over lace 27 inches wide and 2¼ yards 36-inch taffeta.

Many home dressmakers to save time and trouble use the semi-fitted lawn and organdy linings, which can be bought for a few cents in the department stores. It is easy, however, to make a lining by first taking up the darts in front as indicated, closing the seams and hemming the front. The lace yoke at the back is then arranged on the lining and collar added. The lace yoke at the back is then arranged on the lining and collar added, if high neck is desired. Close seam of underbody as notched; then take up the dart at the shoulder as perforated. Gather long sleeve on line of double "oo" perforations, draw gathers to the desired size. Close seam as notched to large "O" perforation. Close seam of underbody as notched.

facing and adjust undersleeve; then gather on double small "oo" perforations and ¼ inch below stitch tape (about 4½ inches long) under gathers. Adjust as shown in the illustration on underbody sleeve, bringing single large "O" perforations together and stitch along small "o" perforations in fancy sleeve, regulating fullness. Gather lower edge of front and back between double "TT" perforations and 2 inches above. Arrange on lining, under-arm seams and lower edges even, crossing in front and back. Bring upper edge of dart to large "O" perforation in front shield and tack. Pleat lower edges of outer-front and back, bringing "T" to corresponding small "o" perforations. Close shoulder seam as notched. Front indicated by large "O" perforation at shoulder seam. Lap back on front under the arm, matching small "o" perforations and stitch. Arrange on underbody, bringing large "O" perforation near shoulder edges together and tack. Cross in front and back as illustrated and fasten at small "o" perforation in peplum.

Added to the dressy effect of the waist is a detail of cut and finish that weighs the balance of favor still further.

HARRISBURG MAN IS NOW HAPPY

I. E. Beckwith Says Wonderful Remedy Gave Him Great Help.

I. E. Beckwith of Harrisburg, Penn., was a victim of disorders of the stomach and intestinal tract. He tried treatment after treatment. Nothing gave him relief.

Then one day he discovered Mayr's Wonderful Remedy—and soon was happy. Mr. Beckwith wrote to Geo. H. Mayr, the maker of the remedy and for twenty years the leading druggist of Chicago.

"I believe that Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is the greatest stomach remedy on earth. One dose would convince any one who is troubled with his stomach of its wonderful merits. It removed some of the most awful looking stuff from my stomach. I have taken other remedies, but they never helped me."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

Food for Thought.

An authority on the subject says men should stop eating for a while and think. Some men, under the circumstances, would merely stop long enough to wonder whence the next meal was to come.

General G. P. Scriven, Chief Signal Officer, U. S. A.

© by Clinedinst.

Brigadier General George P. Scriven, chief signal officer of the United States army, is a warm advocate of the extension of the aviation service. In his last annual report General Scriven urged the training of men of the national guard in aerial warfare and the establishment of reserve corps of aeronauts throughout the country. "Not only is the aeroplane invaluable," he says, "in locating the position of the enemy, but it has especial value to a commander in finding his own troops. In keeping him informed when movements are taking place, with the position of his flanks and center, his outposts, to inform his cavalry of the positions attained by a detached body—in short, of keeping him constantly in touch with the locations and movements of all his troops."

Born in Pennsylvania in 1854, Brigadier General Scriven was appointed to the West Point Military academy in 1874. On his graduation four years later he was assigned as a second lieutenant to the Eighth infantry. Later he was transferred to the artillery, and in 1890 he was appointed to the signal corps. In January, 1912, he attained the rank of colonel in the signal corps and was the only officer of that rank in the organization. He succeeded Brigadier General James Allen as chief signal officer in February of last year. During the Boxer trouble in China in 1900 General Scriven (then captain) served as chief signal officer of the relief expedition and was recommended for the brevet of lieutenant colonel for gallant conduct at Yangtong.

The Larger Sanctity

Be it shown to all the world That the stars and stripes, unfurled, Stainless float above a land; Pure in heart and strong of hand; Patient, firm in self control, Seeking not a selfish goal, But with power to strike a blow In defense against a foe!

Right is right and law is law, Sacred both in peace and war; And, though nations join in strife, Yet the sanctity of life 'Neath the banners not unrolled In the conflict men must hold As protected by the seal Of the universal weal!

O, my country, strongly wait Ere the mighty guns of hate You unlimber; dare to pause, In the greatness of your cause! But with no uncertain word Make your holy purpose heard, To defend by drastic deed Human rights and thy own seed! —Boston Herald.

In the final attack, she actually led a squad of bersaglieri in a bayonet charge that swept the Austrians out of the village.

A full bersaglieri uniform was given to the girl as a souvenir of the victory and her bravery.

GREATEST WHEAT CROP EVER

Federal Report Indicates That Yield May Reach Billion Bushels.

The greatest wheat crop the country ever has known is in prospect for the coming harvest. The federal crop reporting board forecasts the crop at 950,000,000 bushels, which would exceed last year's record crop by 50,000,000 bushels. With continued good weather the crop may reach a billion bushels.

The bulk is winter wheat, planted last fall on the greatest acreage ever sown.

Oats planted last spring, also on the greatest area ever sown to that crop, exceeding last year's area by almost 2,000,000 acres, is forecasted at 1,288,000,000 bushels, which is more than last year or in 1913, but 130,000,000 bushels less than the record in 1912.

The barley crop, from present indications, will be second in point of size, with 197,000,000 bushels, which would be 26,000,000 bushels less than the 1912 record crop, but more than grown last year or in 1913.

Young Italian Peasant Beauty Leads Bersaglieri.

KING VICTOR DECORATES HER

Maria Abbriani Guides Soldiers Up Mountain on Tyrolean Frontier and After Days of Heroism Shares in Bayonet Charge, Which Results in Austrians Being Driven Back.

Maria Abbriani, a dark eyed Italian beauty from a mountain village along the Tyrolean frontier, is the "Joan of Arc" of the Austro-Italian war.

King Victor Emmanuel has awarded her a decoration for her bravery in leading a bersaglieri company in a bayonet attack on the Trentino village of Nori under heavy artillery fire.

With the decoration went a personal telegram of congratulation from the king at his headquarters at the battle front.

The war office at Rome at the same time made public an official dispatch detailing the girl's heroic acts.

Maria lived with her father, an aged Italian, in the Trentino village under Austrian rule. With other Italian residents, she ran out, says the dispatch, to welcome the king's troops when they entered Nori from the south.

Austrians batteries opened fire on the Italians at the outskirts of the village. Maria hurried to the Italian commander, begged permission to be allowed to carry a gun and show the way to reach where the Austrians were hidden.

Her request was granted and one of the soldiers gave her a plumed bersaglieri hat.

For eight hours she was in the thick of the fighting, piloting Italian troops through the streets of the village and up the mountain paths to flank attacks upon the Austrian trenches.
